

Why Choose Us?

- The Children's Peace Center offers the most comprehensive array of clinical behavioral health services in the region to meet the needs of children, teenagers and their families. We help with all types of emotional and behavioral struggles that children and families face.
- We have programs in the top quartile in the country for patient satisfaction among behavioral health providers. This translates to better quality of care and better outcomes for children.
- With team member satisfaction in the top 10 percent nationally among health care organizations, greater team member retention is reached, resulting in consistent and better care and dedication to our patients.
- Our specialty programs were awarded the American Psychiatric Association's Psychiatric Services Achievement Silver Star Award for Innovative Programming — an example of our efforts to provide leading-edge treatment options.
- Our Lady of Peace is accredited by The Joint Commission, the premiere health care accreditation organization in the country.
- The Children's Peace Center offers FREE Needs Assessments administered by professional clinicians. These assessments allow us to provide individualized treatment options at appropriate levels of care.

To schedule a FREE Needs Assessment, call (502) 451-3333 or (800) 451-3637.

Diagnosing Disorders

The Children's Peace Center at Our Lady of Peace will provide a free Needs Assessment to guide you to the program that can best help your child. We help children and teenagers who have emotional and behavioral disorders including:

- depression
- anxiety
- attention deficit and hyperactivity disorder (ADHD)
- oppositional behavior
- aggressive behavior
- unresolved grief and trauma
- substance abuse
- other psychiatric, chemical dependency and co-occurring disorders

Specialty Units

The Children's Peace Center has a variety of specialty units unlike any other in the state and region. The programs are specially designed to offer cutting-edge treatment to meet the needs of children and teenagers who have a co-occurring psychiatric illness, as well as a brain injury or developmental disability such as autism.

Levels of Care

Children and teenagers with emotional and behavioral disorders are often struggling with relationships at school and at home. To help with these disorders, the Children's Peace Center provides treatment options of inpatient care and outpatient programs, such as partial hospitalization and intensive outpatient. Our skilled and compassionate professionals paired with a comprehensive array of services, help children and teenagers rebuild their lives and strengthen their fragile emotions and relationships. Professional clinicians personally assess your child's needs and provide guidance to you so your child will receive the most appropriate level of care.

If you sense that your child needs help, give us a call at (502)451-3333 or (800)451-3637 to schedule a FREE assessment by a professional clinician.

Our Team

The size and complexity of services offered at the Children's Peace Center attracts highly-skilled psychiatrists, nurses, social workers, art therapists, behavior analysts, chemical dependency counselors, activity therapists and occupational therapists. Their comprehensive training enables them to provide a full range of services from general psychiatry to the most complex treatment in a compassionate and safe environment. Peace Academy, a Jefferson County Public School, is on-site allowing our children to continue their studies while receiving treatment.
